

NATIONAL CENTRE for
AUSTRALIAN CHILDREN'S LITERATURE Inc
Sharing our nation's heritage

The National Centre for Australian Children's Literature Inc (NCACL) is the nation's pre-eminent and most comprehensive collection of Australian children's literature. We aim to collect, record and promote the national development of Australian children's literature by preserving, documenting and engaging the community through outreach programs and exhibitions.

Lu Rees began the collection in 1974 with the goal of collecting Australian children's books and information about their authors and illustrators. Now over 40 years old, the collection comprises 42,000 books with 4,300 of these in 59 different languages, authors' papers and manuscripts, illustrators' artworks, research files, audio recordings, photographs, theses, reference material, two publishers' archives and ephemera. NCACL's extensive website provides access to many of its collections. The collection is now valued at over ten million dollars.

The NCACL receives no government or other direct funding and relies on in-kind support, donations, grants and volunteers. In November 2012 it became an incorporated body in the ACT with the aim of establishing a Foundation to fund NCACL perpetuity. As well as the Foundation, we require funds to maintain current services and programs.
